

Fitness - Nov 1, 2004

Burn more fat exercising at higher intensities. The most important factor regarding reducing fat through exercise is not the percentage of energy coming from fat but the total energy cost or how many calories are burned during the activity. The faster you walk, swim or step, the more calories you use per minute. If you cannot exercise at high intensities, start out at a lower intensity and work your way up gradually.